"Give him an inch and he will take an ell." The truth chrystallised in this well-worn adage is demonstrated afresh by the opium suppression fanatics at Home, who, not satisfied with the action of the Imperial Government in closing divans in Hongkong and the Straits Settlements, are asking for further steps of a more drastic nature to be taken. The telegraphic information which we published yesterday setting forth the gist that if their request is not acceded to they of proceedings in the House of Commons on will incite the people to refuse to pay any the debate on the Colonial Estimates, states taxes. By this action the gentry show that that Mr. THEODORE TAYLOR, the Liberal they are not fit to be entrusted with the member for the South-East Division of Lan- privileges which they are claiming. They tion it had taken with regard to the "opium ment also means working for desired ends dens" in Hongkong and the Straits Settle- by constitutional means, and is to be hoped ments, and further asked the Government that their agitation, if attempted, will be to register all existing opium smokers and quickly suppressed. The granting of a to refuse to register any more. Could anything more preposterous or impracticable be submitted to a responsible authority? It poned the innovation for several years to betrays a woeful lack of appreciation of existing conditions, and shows that any scheme however fanciful, which promises to bring un indulgence, the evil of which has been exaggerated, to a compulsary cessation will be considered by these good people. The present rate of progress, which must be regarded by the thoughtful as very fair Civil Service Club and the V. R. C. indeed is insufficient for the anti-opium advocates, who, without any consideration for the interests involved, seem determined to pursue their campaign at all costs. The rachity of the question need not con-

The us now. It has been so often discussed already. But the impracticability of the latest suggestion has only to be mentioned to be appreciated. How can existing smokers be registered? The purchase and possession of the drug, obtained from the legitimate source, is not illegal. Anyone can buy for another. When, how, or by whom it is used, is no concern of the Opium Farmer. As long as the certificate proving that the opium was purchased from the Opium Farm is produced he is satisfied, but were a government bureau established for the purpose of tracking and ascertaining all those who indulge in the habit it would affect his sales and he would have a just claim upon the local government. Such registration would be a breach of conditions under which the tender was invited by the Government, and as its operation would have restrictive tendencies-many smokers do not cure to avow themselves as such—compensation would be demanded. The immediate corollary is that an additional contribution as solatium would be expected with good reason from the Imperial Exchequer. Probably this has been overlooked. But financial considerations are not the most potent in this matter. It would be practically impossible to keep such a registry, and though great importance need not be attached to it, it is interesting to note that the experiment was tried at Canton, and had to be abandoned. In these circumstances, especially when it is remembered that the trade has only a short time to run, it would be advisable for the good folks at Home to realise that they should leave well alone.

THE type of individual known in the West as a "young man in a hurry" is becoming apparent in China. "The young man in a hurry" usually wants by certain political and economic panaceas to achieve Millenium, or what he considers the Millenium, almost immediately, and counterpart in China desires to have constitutional government at once. A constitution for China has been promised. The preliminary steps to this end have already been taken, and there is every indication that the promise will be fulfilled, but even the Chinese themselves should be the first to realise that popular representation and parliamentary government would be dangerous to a people not prepared to properly exercise these. Of course the best education is that which comes by experience, and the country will understand parliamentary institutions much better after they have been established, but it will be readily admitted that to place the franchise at the disposal of people ignorant if its duties and responsibilities would be a hazardous experiment. A certain amount of instruction must first be imparted, information and advice must be distributed to the masses. or rather to the electorate, and then the people having been prepared for their new duties. may be expected to discharge them with the minimum of mistakes. Turkey Russia, and Persia have all had the boon of parliamentary institutions conferred upon them of recent years, and in each country the new Assemblies made many mistakes Doubtless China will do the same. It is too much to expect otherwise. All that can be hoped is that these indiscretions will not involve the destruction of the new body and the best hope of securing that is for the people concerned to realise their responsibilities. In our telegraphic news of yesterday it is announced that the gentry of different provinces, having memorialised the Throne praying for the immediate establishment of constitutional government and having met with a negative response, are now determined to use threats and declare constitution at present would not be politic. and the wisdom of the decision which postcome becomes more apparent every day.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the Bishop of Victoria found it necessary to postpone the lecture announced for last Thursday at the Peak Church. He will (weather permitting) give it on Thursday next, July 7th, at 11.30 a.m. The subject is Newman's popular Hymn, "Lead Kindly Light." This is the last of the series. The previous lectures on "Art Thou weary," "When I survey," "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," and "God moves in a mysterious way" have been much appreciated by the large number of residents on the Peak who have attended.

An old amusement with a galvanic battery bright. was involuntarily played in Rangoon the other afternoon when a branch of a tree fell on the electric light wires between the Pagoda and the junction of Voyle and Ahlone Boads, snapping two of the wires. A pedestrian seeing the wire lying along the road took hold of it to take it away, and then there was trouble. He danced end yelled, but was unable to let go Others seeing him and not understanding the reason for his actions attempted to release him, and soon were in difficulties themselves Word was sent to the Cantonment Police. Electric Company's office, and the victims, some eight or ten in number, were released.

Another old resident of the Colony passed away on Thursday at the Peak Hospital in the person of Mr. Alfredo Francisco de Jesus Soares, the senior partner of Messrs. Soares & Co., of Daddell Street. The deceased gentleman was apparently in good health until three days ago, when he complained of acute pains and his medical adviser ordered him to the Peak Hospital, where he was to undergo an operation yesterday. But his condition became serious, and he died shortly after admission. The deceased, who was much esteemed among his countrymen and the foreign and Chinese community, was a broker and merchant. He established himself as a merchant under the style of Soares & Co He was the eldest son of the late Dr. F. P. BIG THEFT OF OPIUM.

An extensive and well-planned rebbery of opium occurred at the godowns of Mesers, E. D. Sassoon & Co., at the basement of the International Bank, on Thursday night, the thieves getting clear away with two chests and nine balls of opium valued at between $3,000 and $4,000. It is believed that the goods were removed while the storm was at its height, a time when, in all probability the policeman on | night's debate has approved of the that beat would be sheltering from the rain The massive looks which secured the entrance to the godown had either been pricked the tops filed through, or hurned with sold, but the means by which the thieves gained admittance is likely to remain a secret, for the locks are missing. Inside it was found that the locks securing the receptacles in which the opium was stored had also been removed and replaced by fresh ones, as had the locks of the entrance door. When the godown-keeper went, to open the godown yesterday murning he was surprised to find that his key would not fit the lock. and on his reporting this fact to the office it was eventually discovered that the original locks had been substituted by others. When these looks were removed and an entrance gained to the godown, certain receptacles were found to be fitted with fresh looks, and on these being opened the big theft of opium was discovered. It is believed that the object of the thieves in substituting locks was to delay discovery as much as possible, and thereby to gain time for the removal of their booty. An opinion prevails that the opinion was conveyed distant part where the police and excise officers are not likely to discover it.

Early yesterday morning the stormy weather of the previous day revived. Fitful and powerful gusts of wind swept the city, the thunder rolled with a more fearful sound than usual, and as bright flashes of lightning illukong for a long time. This downfall continued almost incessantly until late in the morning, It is now regarded in official circles here when reports began to circulate of damage done by wind and rain.

This, fortunately, was not very extensive, but numerous telephone wires were blown down, while the binding of the roads generally has been washed away. The verandah of a building at 278, Des Voeux Rond Central collapsed, but no one was injured. Landslips have been numerous, a traveller from Stanley yesterday counting as many as seventeen on his way to Hongkong. There was a big slide at the rear of the Hunghom Railway Station, and part of the railway embankment has been washed away The retaining wall of Morrison Hill Gap was washed away and obstructed the thoroughfare. Three small boats got adrift from the Bowrington Canal, and latest reports state that the owners are still searching for them. The letter box at the corner of Arsenal Street and Queen's Road has been nearly buried by a landslip which occurred there.

Perhaps the best place to gain some idea of the extent of Thursday night's rainfall was the Happy Valley. At 5 a.m. yesterday the racecourse presented the appearance of a deep and flowing river, the whole of the local sporting arena being submerged. The bridge at the end of the trained nullah near the village, which is two feet lower than the nullah, was covered, and acted as an obstruction to the flowing water, the dense volume of which swept over the sides of the channel and spread over the southern field of the valley. Again, at the entrance to the coveredin nullah which runs parallel with the race stables, the water was overflowing by about nine inches. The village was completely flooded, the basements of the first three rows of houses being. some three feet deep in water. When the surplus water had overflown the valley had every note. Mr. J. H. Gardiner appeared for the appearance of a large lake, and the tops of the rainings found the training course were just

THE STORM AT CANTON.

After days of the most abnormal heat a great change in the weather set in on Wednesday, when at about 11 p.m. the temperature began to fall rapidly and the wind to blow in fitful gusts. Soon the rain began to fall, at first in sudden showers, and then as the wind increased in violence in a heavier and steadier downpour By one o'clock the wind was raging high and all knew that a typhoon was coming. All through the night the storm blew with great force, the rain falling nearly all the time. On Thursday morning the river was seen to be more full of water than ever and the tide was running up from the sea with a force that is but seldom seen. Few sampans dared to cross and most of them were taking shelter in the Shameen creek. Even steamboats could make but s'ow progress against the tremendous force of the tide. All day long the wind continued with fury, but in the afternoon it reached the zenith of its force. The trees on Shameen were bent and blown about as though they were threads of silk. In the city the "leung p'ang," or awnings placed over the streets to keep out His Lordship -- I will have to try the question | the sun, were blown down and many of the streets were rendered almost impassable by reason of the bamboo poles and matting that lay seross them. Many old buildings have been blown down and hardly a matshed in the place remains.

The few boats that ventured to cross the river did so at great peril. Throughout the day the rain continued to pour down in tremendous quantities and with such force that neither umbrellas nor rain coats were proof against it. Towards ten in the evening the storm abated and the rain became less violent. Yesterday morning there was no wind and the rain had stopped, but the sky was overcast and angry looking.

For several days past the people here have been making special prayers to the gods to send rain and to stop the abnormal heat that was causing the deaths of hundreds of people. The priests spread abroad the tale that the gods were angry because the Cantonese were luxurious and did not pay sufficient stiention to their devotions. Bome few days ago the officials established a new altar in the Shing Wong Miu, which was dedicated with much ceremonial. The god who is supposed to inhabit this tomple is believed by the people to preside over the destinies of this city and it was this diety above all others hat was supposed to be especially angry at the thortcomings of the people. No doubt they will think he is now propitiated. At any rate. the rain will do much good, for the state of things in the province, owing to the lack of it. was getting very serious. Incidentally, it has rendered no small service in washing away some of the filth with which the streets of the city abound. The amount of damage that the storm has done is, of course, as yet not known, but as news comes in from the country places it will in all likelihood he found to be considerable. While the sterm was raging in the early hours of Thursday morning a fire broke out in a street behind Sha-Kei and the force of the wind soon spread the flames with great rapidity. The howling of the wind, the beating of the alarm gongs and the shouting of the excited people

This is the Board which was the outcome the Boxer rising, and it is the Board which, after four years' consideration, has resolved to make Tibet a province, and is bolieved to be meditating an exertion of authority over Nipal. A great opportunity was missed when in 1900 the "Eight Powers," as the Chinese called the Allied forces, invisted on the formation of a proper Foreign Office in Peking. What they got was the Waiwupu, and this is only another name for the Tsung-li Yamen. A rose by any other name may smell as sweet, but there is no great difference between a cosspool and a stognant drain. It will be very surprising if the Chinese find

The Chinese have now for a good many years been trying to "introduce the benefits of civilisation" among the wild Wa, but with remarkably little success. The Wa have rejected the proffered benefit with a good deal of violence and bloodshed. It is quite conceivable that the Gurkhas might so thoroughly resent the enterprise as to chase the emissaries of this sort of civilisation far back into their own country Bines Nipal is within the sphere of influence of the Indian Government, the prospect is not one that we can regard with calm detachment, as if it were a glorifled international football match.

CHINA AND THE BURMA FRONTIER. It is not merely in Nipal, however, that there may be trouble shead. There be trouble all along our north-east frontier. Up to now the north-west is the only frontier that has been regarded worth thinking about and watching. Our north-eastern frontier is as unsatisfactory as it well can be. Considerable stretches of it are lamentably bad from the physical point of view. In other places where it is obvious and altogether excellent, as far as the barrier is concerned, there has as yet been no final settlement. If Tibet is to become a finally administered Chinese province, the airy statement that our frontier on the north of the Kachin tracts is only by national ambition will have to be revised and annotated, and there not many who are able it, either off-hand or on a map. This is made all the clearer from the failure to settle the frontier where it begins to go southward. It is very obvious on the map. It should be the line of the watershed of the Nmaikha and the Salween, and we say so, at intervals, with mild protest and conviction-at Calcutta and Peking and Downing Street. The Chinese politely make a note of it and then officials and population on the ground trek over the border and collect tribute where they can and settle where they please. When once the natural line is passed there is no reason why they should stop anywhere, except the extremely worthless character of the ground as a whole. But that is not the point. The neces-Bity of a position in territories like these, with populations of imperfect morals and uppraiseworthy habits, is the determination of responsibilities. The Chinese, with a due regard for orderliness and a lofty disregard for ethnology, lump the dependencies of the Empire together under the classes of the Inner Mongols and the therefore all the more desirable to determine who is to be responsible for their doings. This is still more required in the Wa States. There the frontier has been partially mapped and fairly accurately set forth in words by us, and the result has been communicated to the Chinese Government by the Foreign Office, with a man to confirm it, but before, during and after the intimation Chinese officials have isaned orders to the villagers and Chinese traders have exploited the silver mines miles on our side of the frontier painted red on our maps. The mines are well hold and steadily worked, but the orders are not on so satisfactory a footing. The Wa in fact collect heads at their convenience now and then make raids and burn villages and oven Shan-Chinese capitals when it seems good to them. Unfriendly nots of this kind cannot go on indefinitely, without notice of any kind being taken of them by either side. The wild Wa have given us no trouble in the way of head-hunting though they have the skulls of two British officers. The reason no doubt is that the Salween is too awkward a river to cross except at regular ferries. But we are responsible for them and a time must come when we shall be called upon to keep them in order. That will be when Peking finds out that local attempts at civilisation have to far been unqualified failures.

It is quite likely that this may be very s on, The formal occupation of Lhasa and the effective suserminty suggestion over There is, says a writer in the Rangoon Gazette, Nipal may very well bring it up. Still than fifty years ago. It owed its matter, although the Kengtung levies sacked

He was succeeded by Lord Salisbury, who thought that the East was not worth a mass or a protocol, and a "black man" more or less not worth consideration. Moreover, there was the question of the Decennial Tribute from Burms, which some industrious Babu-like person raised, and China, which had forgotten all about it, noted and accepted with ponderous gravity. It had been as completely allowed to drop as the tribute technically due from Siam and Annam. So the Chieng-hung matter was held up by us as a moons of shelving the tribute question and by China as a forgotten asset. Twenty years ago both the Superintendents of the Shan States went and had a look at Chieng hung. They found the Chief engaged in restoring order in his state. This he did by leaving his capital and establishing himself. in a bamboo nalace some fifty miles away. where he smoked opinm day and night. Between he assured them that he was eager to become a British subject. About same time he received a visit from

M. Pavie, who affected to regard Chieng-hung as a kind of derelict territory, and told him that as long as it was not China he was quite indifferent as to who was his overlord. The same affability seems to have characterised his communications with various German officers. one of whom was mad and the others merely collecting information ..

Since then nothing has been done by us beyoud noting that there has been civil war in the State ever since. The Chao of one of the twelve large Panna into which Chieng-hung is divided has declared his independence and has maintained it for the last twenty years. The Chinese have at intervals sent down detachments of troops to restore o der, but thes have never got beyond the preliminaries of battening on the population outside Mong Se, the deflant Panns. Last cold weather a considerable body of foreign-trained and foreign-armed troops came up from Kwangsi, but their performance did not go beyond that of the ordinary braves who had preceded them, and they have gone back to spend the proceeds of their expedition in more agreeable places.

It is believed that the Hsenwihps of Chienghung has asked to be taken under British protection very many times, at least as often as there has been a change in the Assistant Political Officer at Kengtung. The Chao of Mong Se has given expression to the same desire. The annual cold weather caravans of Panthay traders regularly enquire why we do not restore order in the State and when we are going to do it. Quite a number of heads of Panna intermittently ask the same question. Wandering French proconsuls want to know what reason there is why France should not take the territory east of the Mekong and Great Britain that to the west. Within the last year or two a fresh complication has appeared in the person of a brother of the Heenwilips, who aspires to supplant that sorry potentate, and makes periodical raids to the neighbourhood of the capital, only to retire precipitately when his camp is reconnoitred by levies from Chieng-hung.

The State is a very remote one, but does not seem likely that this hopeless state of affairs can go on very much longer. We are constantly being told that China is wakening up She has certainly wakened up so far as to make her authority effective at Lhasa. Presumably this has been done under the spur of the 1906 Treaty. The awakening cannot. therefore, be called hasty or precipitate, but now that her eyes are opened and turned towards her south-western frontier, we must be prepared for developments all along the Shan States border. And these developments will affect not only us, but also the French territories of the Haut

TURKISH NOTE ON EGYPT. SUSPICIOUS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

There has recently been an exchange of Notes between the British and the Turkish Governments with regard to Egipt. Owing to certain reports relating to the future of the country becoming tourrent, the Turkish Government applied to the British Ambassador at Constantinople with a request for the publication by the British Government of an official dementi of these reports, which should be calculated definitely to reassure public opinion. The Ottoman dovernment appears to have expected to receive a favourable raply, in view of the recent declarations by Sir Edward Gray on the subject of Egypt. To its surprise, however, the British Ambassador asked if it was the intention of the Turkish Government to try to create "an Egyptian question."

The Porte was apparently vexed at this reception of its request, and it asked the Turkish Ambassador in London to approach Sir Edward Grey on the matter. The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs thereupon replied that in all probability the declarations of the British Ambassador, which necessarily, had been imbued with the circumspection and reserve imposed upon him by the actual circumstances, had been misjudged. Sir Edward Grey added that the British Government had in principle no objection to give effect to the Turkish desire to see a definite statement published on the subject, but that in view of internal events in Egypt the publication of any of weakness or of hesitation on the part of Great Britain to take action should the circumstances require it.

Therefore, while reiterating his previous assurances with regard to the intention of the British Government to devote its most serious efforts to the maintenance of the status quo in Egypt, Sir Edward Grey regretted that he could not give any immediate effect to the suggestion of the Ottoman Government. Meantime, it is known that the Turkish authorities in the Sinci Peninsula are complaining to the Porte of the action of the Egyptian authorities, alleging that they are distributing arms to the tribes and extending the zone of their fortifications. As these suggestions are unfounded, it would rather seem as if the Turkish Government is desirous of raising again the whole question.

THE STING OF DEATH.

In the May issue of the World's Work Professor Elie Metchinkoff, who, after studying the longevity of the Balkan peoples, decided that their diet of sour milk products had much to do with destroying the old age bacillus, has republished (in English) his latest paper on the problem of death.

"From time immemorial mankind (he writes) has striven to find an answer to this question. The majority of the people believed, and many people believe even new, that death is not the actual termination of life, and that there is another, eternal life beyond this life. The belief in the immortality of the soul or in the immortality of man has became very deeply rooted in man. It is ofter declared that this belief is qualified for the purpose of defeating the fear of death, and thus solving the problem in the best manner. But this may be true in a narrow sense only. Highly educated people, notwithstanding the profound faith of which they may be capable, develop a very strong fear of death. It is not surprising that it should be so, for the belief in eternal life is acquired by certain people through education, whereas fear of death something purely instinctive.

"For this reason it is easy to see that the philosophical systems, with their theory of a metaphysical whole, to which human life must subject itself and sacrifice itself, will not mest with great success. There is nothing left but to turn to science with this question and see whether science is in a position to solve the great problem of human life.

"In order to attain the aim of life completely the present life of man is too brief, just because his psychic development requires such a long time. But the brovity of life is the result of man's animal origin. Organs and arrangements which were essential to animals have entirely superfluous to the far more perfected human being. Therefore, science must remove this evil, which may be accomplished through a systematic adherence to hvarienia rules.

"It is very probable that natural death is also a form of poisoning which is caused not by the foreign bacteria in our organism, but by various natural elements in our own bodies. We are justified in believing that natural death accompanied by extraordinarily sweet sensations. It is probable that the poisons in the body that participate in this process arouse these pleasant

INTERNATIONAL COTTON CONGRESS.

Brussels, June 7th. The International Cotton Congress was resumed to-day, M. Casmir Berger (France) presiding.

Mr. C. W. Macara (England) announced that the members of the International Committee had been received in audience by the King of the Belgians. Considerable time was spent dealing with the inadequacy of the cotton crops, in the port of Shanghai. Indeed, the comof the norld and in discussing means of securing better supplies.

Mr. A. Schmidt, secretary to the Federation, said that if the British Cotton Growing Association devoted mere of its attention to India. especially to establishing buying agencies, its efforts would be rewarded by excellent results.

Mr. S. M. Johnson (Cawnpore) said he did not see why India should not in time produce ten million bales of cotton yearly, or nearly as much as America.

Mr. A. H. Dixon (England), speaking with reference to the cofton prospects in Egypt, said the yield of the soil appeared to have not got gradually less, there being a diminution of about 22 per cent. in twelve years, Still, many of great experience in Egypt were by no means pessimistic. The Egyptian Government should establish a Department devoted entirely to agriculture.

Mr. R. H. Jackson and Mr. J. M. Thomas, reporting on the work of the British Cotton Growing Association, expressed the confident hope that within a comparatively short time there would be a large increase of cotion from British Colonies.

Mr. N. N. Waddia (India) confirmed the statements about the possibility of largely increasing the quantity and improving the quality of Indian cotton in a comparatively short time, and urged that a delegation from the Congress should visit India.

Mr. J. W. Fox (Director of the Mississippi Experimental Station) stated that the present condition of the American cotton crop presented no cause for alarm from the spinners' standpoint. No factor would be so potent in ensuring a normal supply of cotton as a staple price. The world must revise its ideas as to the price of cotton as it had done with regard to meat and

Asked by Herr Kuffler (Austria) what he thought that price should be, Mr. Fox suggested 15 cents a pound - a statement which the Congress received with incredulity. Herr Kuffler then inquired if the Congress was to understand that American cotton was to cost 15 cents a pound whether there was a big crop or a small crop. Were they to be in the position that all other things might change but that the price of cotton was to be an-changeable? Mr. Fox repeated that in his opinion the cost of cotton must advance to 15 cents owing to the increased cost of everything connected with cotton growing.

Mr. Macara pointed out that high priced cotton had the effect of lessening the consump tion of cotton goods. The price accounted for the world-wide depression in the colton trade. The duty was incumbent upon them to redouble their efforts to encourage cotton-rowing in all parts of the world.

Contributions on the political situation in France and England, notes on literature, and other matters of general interest to the French residents in London are other features of the first number. The editor of the paper is M. Philabert, who was formerly associated with M. Clemencean on La Justice Paris Nouvelles has the advantage of a large list of special writers and contributors. The paper is published every Saturday. and is the most serious attempt yet made to establish an influential French newspaper in THE CHINESE NAVY

A very great obstacle in the way of command ing the reorganisation of the Chinese Navy is the absence of officers and men trained in the handling of modern ships of war, says Engineernaval colleges at Tientsin, Chefoo, Shanghai, Captain Outerbridge also gave out a bunch | Nankin, and Canton provide certain facilities of other information in his inimitable manner, for the study of naval matters, but in no case

Shanghai, Foochow, and Whampon, near Canton, constitute bases and naval repair-stations in the North; in the central part of the coast-line, and in so that no work is now carried on there. The Shanghai establishment comprises an arsenal, shipyard, and engine and boiler works. The shipyard and engine works were let about five years ago to a private company, which has reorganised the whole establishment, with the result that the engine and boiler works have been brought up to a more efficient standard than they formerly occupied. The graving dock was enlarged, but no very great improvement was made in the shipbuilding establishment. The company has since been worked satisfactorily and has handled a large amount of repair-work petition has been most severely felt by the Shanghai Dock and Engineering Company. which is the principal engineering and repairing establishment in Shanghai. In addition to undertaking mercantile repair-work such Chinese warships as could enter the dock there have had their repairs effected at this establishment, and on several occasions torpedoboat destroyers of the British Equadron on the China Station have undergone docking and repairs. At the dockyard of Foochow, which was for many years under the management of French experts, have been built various classes of small warships and river steamers. It is used as a repair station by many of the ships of the Chinese fleet, and possesses dry-docking accommodation; but as the port suffers under the disability of strong tides and currents, docking operations are rendered somewhat difficult and at times dangerous. The establishment at Whampon occupies a practically similar position of ineptitude as the one at Taku.

VENICE MURDER TRIAL

VERDICT AND SENTENCE.

The proceedings in Venice against Counters Tarnowska, MM. Prilukoff and Naumoff, and Elise Perrier, in connection with the alleged murder of Court Kamarowsky, are concluded. The attitude of the prisoners seemed but little different from that adopted by them throughout. the trial. The Countess Tarnowska, who was very pale, might be seen sometimes applying a handkerchief to her eyes.

At helf-past two the jury retired to consider their verdict. On recentering the Court the foreman of the jury stated that their verdict was as follows:-

The maid, Elise Perzier, was acquitted. The others were sentanced to the following terms of solitary confinement, to include the time already spent in custody :- Naumoff, three years one Colony in London, which is becoming more month; Countess Tarnowska, eight years four months; and Prilukoff, ton years. On the ground that the jury were not unanimous, the counsel for the defence in the Kamarowski trial have petitioned for another trial.

THE DERBY.

A GREAT BACE. The Derby of 1910, an historic and a remarkable race, has been won, and lost. The favourite. Lemberg, by Cyllene-Galicia, in a desperate finish, defeated Lord Villiers' Greenback (by St. Frusquin—Evergreen) in the record time of 2 min. 35 1-5 secs. Mr. "Fairie," the owner of the winner, thus receives compensation for the defeat of Bayardo in last year's Derby. Charles O'Malley was third, and Lord Rosebery's Neil Gow, who sprung a curb on his hock a few days before the race, but in spite of this was expected by very many to carry off the prize, was placed fourth. A contemporary gives a description of the race as under :-A good race it was, this struggle for the Derby. Away at the starting point one saw the bunch of colours little, bright, distant dots with the background of green foliage. Restless little dots, running backwards and forwards, changing places, in a shifting kaleidoscope. The roar of the crowd grew to a tumult, and then dropped to a dead silence. "They're off!" The little dets of colour were moving swiftly, all in a bunch at first: and then stretching out into a longer line, and then coming nearer to one's vision, so that one could see the colours clearly, and the long, thin legs beating the turf. A line of coaches obscured them for a moment or two. The, they came in a flash round Tattenham Corner. Greenback led into the straight, followed by Lemberg. "Neil Gow is out of it! Oh, he hasn't a chance!" everyone was shouting now, and the defeat of Neil Gow was proclaimed in a tumult of excitement. "Greenback! Greenback!" the man close to me, who had said "Watch the dark blue and the buff." was shouting triumphantly. But Lemberg. was coming close. The white with he orange sleeves was holding the dark blue. At the last it was a dual between them. Excitement leapt at one's throat just for those few swift seconds. Lemberg's jockey was riding like the devil on horseback. That boy and horse were like one creature flashing past and hardly seeming to touch the ground. A terrific short acolsimed the victor. It was "Mr. Fairle's Lemberg. ridden by Dillon, and Greenback and Charles O'Malley were second and third in a race uncertain from the start to a hot finish.

The colt has been a strong public foncy ever since there has been eny betting on the rare, for the white and crange jacket of his owner is among the best known on the turf, and always commands a large following. The real name of the owner of the Derby winner is Mr. Cox. It is said that he made his money out of the Broken Hill mines in Australia, taking a number of shares in liquidation of a debt. A Grateful Wife

Maternity Weakness. Rheumatic Fever, Depression—

Just sitting still and thinking everything possible has been done, does not suit Mrs. Wilson, for all the usual ways failing to restore her husband's health, she tried the Royal way-the Phosferine way. The benefit was immediate, for all the depression and weakness of rheumatic fever, which change of air, diet, and friends had failed to relieve, diminished with every dose of Phosferine. This triumphant outcome of Mrs. Wilson's devoted vigilance is typical of the exceptional efficacy of Phosferine, but of still deeper importance is her assurance that before, during, and after childbirth she herself derived such an access of strength and vitality from Phosferine, that weakness, lassitude, or distress was not in any way experienced.

Decidedly Abolished.

Mrs. E. Wilson, 41, Bedford Road., Grays, Essex, writes:- "My husband started taking Phosferine after a severe bout of rheumatic fever, and although he went away to the seaside for change of air failed to make any headway. He wrote complaining of always feeling tired and despondent, and doubtful as to whether he would ever be able to resume his business. I sent him a 2/9 bottle of Phosferine, and after a few doses, he felt a great deal of difference, and before his supply was finished was quite himself again and ready and able to do a hard day's work with anyone. I am also very grateful for the good Phosferine has done me in maternity weakness; before my child was born I took it regularly and it strengthened me wonderfully, the subsequent tax upon my constitution was not half so great as one would naturally expect. I am certain Phosferine taken by mothers is a great help both before and after child-birth, as it supplies just the strength needful at this time, and moreover, imparts strength and stamina to both, and I assure you I am very proud of my beautiful baby girl."-February 8, 1910

A PAN THAT MAKES OFONE. An ozone producing electric fan now being made in Vienna utilizea Dr. Franz Fischer' novel discovery that when air is much heafed and then suddenly cooled ozone is produced. A dombination of small fly-wheel and air-fan is driven by an electric motor, and sucks in air and sends it through a kind of fannel to a Nernst radiator giving a heat of 2000 deg. C. The heated current is cooled by mixing with the air into which it is then forced. Of the oxygen passed through about 4 per cent, is ozonized, and this proportion cannot be exceeded, so there is no risk of an excessive production of ozone A single piece of apparatus, weighing not more than 30 pounds and needing but a small amount of power, is sufficient to purify the air of large hall.

DROPS SHAREN FROM BAINBOWS. The downpour of rain that sometimes follows a flash of lightning is usually supposed to be due to the coalescence of fine drops on losing their electrical charge, but Laine, a Finnish observer, has found reason to adopt a new theory. He concludes that the thunder jars the drops together. Near Vasa, a heavy thunder-storm came up from the east late one August afternoon, and, as the sun was unclouded, a brilliant double rainbow appeared in the east for situation in India. The stability of the increase half an hour, arching from horizon to horizon, At each roll of thunder the minbows seemed to be much shaken, the edges being displaced and the colours blurred. This could not be due to the lightning, and it seemed that the same cause might enlarge the raindrops and disturb the rainbows.

There is a curious tend ency to pronounce every unfamiliar stone a mete orite. One morning last October a broken gate at Norwood, Mass, attracted attention, and was traced to a hard gray rock of 275 pounds, which was declared to be still warm, and was soon exhibited in a dime museum as a meteorite. Dr. E. O Hovey has since examined the mass, finding it to be ordinary dike rock-labradorite-porphyry -with no characteristic of meteorites.

PLANT STIMULANTS AND POISONS, and potash salts, other materials in the soil act as plant foods or stimulants, and some as pois, ons. Collecting the experience of numerous observers, René Villier, a French chemist shows that manganese salts have much effect on plant growth, the sulphate having given the best results, but the chloride and oxide also having Farquhar Islands, 180 miles to the north-east of exerted favourable action. Experiments have ben tried with these salts on rice, wheat, oats, barley, sugar beets and flar, With 10 to 50 pounds of the salt per acre, yields have been usually increased from 25 to 50 per cent., but an excess—such as 100 pounds of the sulphate per scre-has diminished the crop. As the proportion of manganese is not always raised in the plants of increased yield, it is inferred that the help so sorely needed by their mates being benefit may be partly due to destruction of toxins left in the soil by preceding crops. similar action seems to be exerted by copper salts, so much used in fungicides, and the yield of maize has been increased from 27 to 86 per cent by soaking the seed corn in a copper sulphate solution before planting. Zone salts, injurious in any but minute quantity; have been found to promote the growth and multiplication of mould and yeast fungi and the germination of wheat. Alumina, applied to the ground as alum solution stimulated the growth of barley and flax; and magnesia increased the crop of grain, potatoes and beets, but chiefly by promoting the assimilation of nitrogen. Bromine, iodine and fluorine act as stimulant or poison, according to dose. ACETYLINE INHALATION.

The physiological effects of nostylens, now so much used, have been studied by Grehant, who has prepared an artificial atmosphere of 79 volumes of acetylene and 21 volumes of oxygen, and has noted the action of this mixture on animals breathing it. The acetylene proves to be much less poisonous than carbon monoxide, whose effects in illuminating gas and as given off by coal fires are so well known, A pigeon in the acetylene mixture died in 30 minutes and a rabbit in 40 minutes, but a tortoise was unharmed, and the arrested respiration of a frog was restored on being brought into the open air. OILED SLEEPERS.

Pine sleepeers treated with California crude oil have been used on the Santa Fe Railway since February, 1912, with no sign of decay. Untreated sleepers last not over two years. MOVING PICTURES BY WIRE.

The new television of Edonard Belin, the French inventor, depends upon the use of special perforated photographs, and upon transmission of light and shade by mechanical means instead of depending on the slow variations of the selenium cell. The holes in the paper photographs are of various sizes, to correspond to the large and small dots making up the, ordinary newspaper half-tone. The prepared photograph of the racent event or other scene is placed on a metal base and passed under a set of metal brushes in an electic circuit with the distant viewing accon, and the current passed at each impulse varies with the size of the perforation. The varying portions of the ourrent received are made to illuminate more or less strongly little spots on the screen, each light spot corresponding in size and position to a perforation in the picture transmitted. A series of cinematograph photographs passed under the brushes would yield a reproduction on the screen showing the original life and motion, and is claimed to solve the problem of transmitting living images by wire. It is stated that the crude experiments made between two stations in Paris have demon. strated the method.

ADHESION OF SM OOTH PLATES. Showing the results of his process of grinding and polishing steel plates for smoother than hos been hitherto possible, Johansson, Swedish enf gineer, has given to the Paris Academy of Sciences a remarkable demonstration of the molecular attraction between bodies in contact. The slightest microscopio unevenness is sufficient to prevent molecular adhesion. Electromagnetic influences being proven to be absent, one steel plate was placed on top of another, and then the pull of even heavy weights failed to separate them. The space between the two plates was found to be less than 1-2,500,000 of 300 MILES FOR HELP.

A story of British pluck and endurance which Besides the nitrogeneous manures and lime deserves to rank high in nautical records was told on Saturday, June 4th, when some of the crew of the wrecked Cardiff steamer Torridge arrived at Plymouth.

The Torridge, a steamer of 3,838 tons, owned by Messrs. W. J Tatem & Co., of Cardiff, was on a voyage from Durban to Ceylon, when heavy weather drove her out of her course, and she grounded on a coral reef amongst the Madagaacar.

There was no possibility of getting the ship off the rocks, nor any likelihood of help for the marconed sailors. As a "forlorn hope" the ship's mate and a boat's crow volunteered to go in search of assistance.

Three hundred miles they travelled, scorched by a blazing tropical sun during the day, drenched by torrential rains at night. At the end of six days they had their reward, the ¿ Every member of the crew was saved; but the

Of all the evils which the inhabitant of the torrid zone is called upon to endure, the greatest are, perhaps, the deadly debility and nervous depression which are the forerunners of the more and down then river like a trim Amazon. Sanatogen has a singular effectiveness. It is not as a tonic only that it stands unrivalled; it is, besides, a perfect food, extremely rich in just Sanatogen is the casein or "card," the nitrogenous principle of milk. THE NEW ELOUNCE. A few years ago the river-girl had to choose between utility and ornament; either she was a dream of frilly muslin, and could not handle a punt-pole, or she was as severe as a good tailor could make her, and sent her craft spinning up things have altered; there is a special brand of fashion associated with the river now, and the workmanlike. OLD PASHIONS FOR NEW. There is something about the background of a river-scene, which always appeals to the sense of the picturesque in us; and when this happens we always pay our times the bad compliment of reverting to others! Delaines for river wear, for instance, are mostly patterned with the little resebuds or tiny floral sprigs of our grandmothers' youth; the favourite river hat is always a variation of the mob cap; and short, dairymaid sleeves and old-fashioned neat fichu are always found in river gowns. This year is no exception to the rule, the chief recognition of to-day's fashion being in the frequency of pleated skirts confined beneath broad plastrons, back and front, with communicating straps at either side. The ultrafashionable tight skirt can have no place in a boat, where freedom of movement is an absolute necessity, unless feminine helplessness is to be the wearer's rôle.

A TYPICAL COSTUME. A charming cet-up for the river is a frock of white soft woollen canvas, the skirt pleated at the sides, with a plain panel, formed of a wide stitched pleat, back and front. It is by means of the vast organisation of secret societies with which China is honeycombed from Mukden to Canton that he has conducted his campaign. Dr. Sun Yat Sen has declared his intention of throwing every port open to the world when be becomes-President of the Chinese Republic of which he dreams; but the watchword of the societies is "China for the Chinese," and the recent riots in Hunan prove that any general movement will at once imperil the lived of Europeans in the country.

Greatest of all the secret societies is the Sanhohu or Triad, of which Dr. San Yat Sen is believed to be the "head centre." Some authorities estimate the numbers of its members at 2.500.000, but others declare it includes at least 0.000,000 of the 50,000,000 adult males in China. Its power reaches as far as Liverpool, San Francisco, and Sydney, and no delinquent member is ever safe from its emissaries.

It was founded in 1674, and its name signifies Three United"-referring to Heaven, Earth. and Man. When these three have united to drive out the Manchus and all other foreign devils, its members believe, the perfect triangle will be formed, and universal peace will follow, Another name of the society is Thiantibui, or Heaven-Earth League Its avowed object i to seek more light, or " ming," but Ming was also the name of the previous dynasty, and this ambiguous phrase never concealed the fact that its object was solely political.

Subscriptions are largely raised by levies on the keepers of gambling dens, and the society is always well provided with money. GUILDS OF BEGGARS.

In addition, there are countless guilds of merchants, and even thieves and beggars, which are in reality powerful secret societies. It was the American Exclusion Treaty, proposed in 1905, that gave the chief impetus to the federation of societies which has since increased so rapidly. Trade guilds combined to boycott foreign goods, and new anti-foreign societies sprang up everywhere. Then the Reformers took over the control of the movement, and used it to bind all societies together. Many efforts have been made by the central Government to stem the tide. A reward of £10,000, payable on delivery, was offered for of the Aikwohni Society were condemned to death, and the society was ordered to be dissolved. Not only is the Liver the largest but one of the most important organs in the human body, and when deranged it becomes the source of endless suffering. When the Liver is clogged by the inactivity of the kidneys and bowels, it becomes torpid, and fails to filter the bile from the blood, thus producing biliousness and a general impairment of the digestive system. The tongue is coated, the head aches, digestion is imperfect; there is aching of the limbs and back, feelings of fulness, weight and soreness over the stomach and liver; the eye becomes yellow and jaundiced and the complexion muddy, the urine is scanty and highly coloured, and the bowels irregular, constipation and looseness alternating. There is little use treating the liver separately, as it can never be set right until the kidneys and bowels are made active in removing the waste from the body. It is for this very reason that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have always proved so wonderfully successful in curing the most chronic Liver complaint, biliousness and complicated ailments of the kidneys, liver, and bowels. They reach the liver as no other remedy does.

They aren perfect Blood Purifier and ha positive and permanent cure for Biliouspess, Indigestion, Constipation, Headaches, Sallow Complexion, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Piles, Pimples, Boils and Biotches, and for Female Ailments.

VIOLET JACOB (Author of "The Sheepstealers," "The Interloper," etc.).

I was quite a young man when I first made the dequaintance of my Aunt Bessie Arnol thirty years ago, and went to stay with her at Bank Villa.

I had never met any of my Scotch relations, and Aunt Bessie, my mother's sister, seldom left the Scotch country town in which I was to spend the next three months as her quest. I had finished my last university term and was preparing to read for the Bar, but my plans were brought to a standstill when I strained my heart in a cross-country race, and everying had to be left to slide in the general collapse which followed. The doctor said I must make my mind to rest in some quiet bracing

My home was in the West of England and to myself and my parents, who were anything but rich, the question of where I was to go was a difficult one to answer. But Aunt Bessie answered it by suggesting that I should come to Bank Villa, where I could get strong lowland air and the good feeding I needed. Accordingly I started for the north.

My aunt, who met me on the platform of featured Scotswoman dear to fiction as anyone could be. Everything about her was soft. She had soft eyes, a soft voice, soft grey hair, and she wore an old-fashioned Indian shawl with pattern of soft colours. the looked at me with interest as we walked together to our destina tion, and I know now that she was debating how much good food she would be able to cram down my throat.

We took our way noross a tiny public pleasure ground and up a road ascending between long wall and the deep cleft laid out in nursery gardens which formed the east boundary of the

"That's Bank Villa," said my aunt. We were passing under a small atone house standing on a mound which rose so steeply on the other side of the wall that the Villa was perched above our heeds. It was an odd-looking little place and the horrid wordert Villa! had prepared me for something much more modern and less solid ... On that grey afternoon its dark stone and the dark shrubs surrounding were all merged into a damp menotone of col ours, and its laurel bushes pressed close about it in a way that was both exclusive and protecting; a few larger trees surrounded it, too, and had a slice of garden which crowned the back and ended in a double row of gnarled apple trees. It was dull, sombre, and early Victorian; and though it stood at right angles to the road and I could not see its windows. I somehow knew by instinct that it had Venetian blinds. What made it unusual was the small semi-classic porch supported by Paladian pillars which through the tree-stems. It reminded me of thought how badly my aunt and her house

I went upstairs early that night, for my journey had tired me more than I fancied, but though my belongings were unpacked, and his room, and the picture hung where it does everything was in order I did not get into now - You see that the hand is stretched this bed at once. My little room was very comfort way. able, and I sat down at the fire, as tired people so often do, to enjoy the pleasant a strange feeling was creeping over my skin

The paper was of an old-fashioned. nondescript design which I cannot now recall but which were the quiet, non-committel look of everything else. The dominant suggestion of it all was an unobtrusive secrecy.

There was only one object between the four walls which made any demand on the occupant and that was the picture hanging above the mantel-piece. I lay back against my cushions. and, stretching out my feet into the fender. began to study it.

His eyes were small and set close to a large nose, and his gold watch chain with its tassel of hanging seals, stretched estentatiously across his stomach. He did not attract me at ali.

I knew enough about Indian types to guess that the native was a Madrassi, for though he was only moderately black, the out of his smug, mutton-chop whiskers and his pugares bore the stamp of southernmost India, as I had seen it in the Indian picture books which were the delight of my youth, and which had been sent home by my mother's father, who was Madras morchant. I wondered if it were who hung on the wall, though the portrait did not tally with any descriptions of him I had

The servant was gazing into space with his dull liquid eyes; his left hand was on the back right to something outside the picture, something which ought to be standing just where my bed stood. There was a heavy gold ring on his little finger set with a red stone, which was remarkable from its conical shape, for it stood up in a high point above the setting. Behind the pair was a landscape with a white building that looked like a palace and a row of palm-trees. The date on the painting was 1833. Imaginative people and those who are in a nervous state have no business to sit with their minds fixed on one particular object the last thing at night. If my aunt had only known how late it was when I turned my eyes from the couple in the tarnished gilt frame, she would, I verily believe, have come up and put me to bed like a maughty child. I lay down at last still thinking of them, and when I fell asleep I dreamed of them all night-at least I think I dreamed, for I dropped into one of those fitful slumbers in which one can never be quite sure whether one sleeps or wakes. But all night long I saw the man and his Indian servant. The strange thing was that the native no.

longer pointed to my bed but to the window. I did not strike a light in my wakeful intervals. for I was wearied out with the perpetual vision of the two men and had no desire to give it what I had seen was reality. I had so far masreality. But my overwrought nerves strove the whole time with them; not from the effort to banish them, but from a futile attempt to get the drawing upon me the pobable wrath and derision black man's hand into the right place. I slept of my aunt. I bolstered up my courage and normally towards morning and awoke saner and went to rest, with a heart which best like a a little refreshed.

down on the foot of my bed. "Uncle Julius was my father's eldest brother, and I can remember him as an old man living in this house. He had gone to India in his youth and settled in Madras, as your grandfather did, where he made a moderate fortune. I was dreadfully afraid of him as a child, I remember. He had had gathered round me. Had experienced no thrill of misgiving I might have spoken, but the gooseskin on my body kept me silent from shame. Because I know myself for a fool I would not share the knowledge.

I got up, dressed, and went out of the house as quickly as I could, for I wanted to be away from any influence which could remind me of great-uncle. Julius and his servant; and with the clear air the feverish notions of night slackened their hold upon me and I was ready to jeer at my own folly. It was not till bed-time that any uncomfortable feelings came back. There was nothing for it; but to put away by force of will the silly creepiness which the thought of that picture gave me. Even could I have brought myself to tell my aunt of my difficulty there was no other room in the little house that she could have given me. I must inake up my mind to live with the black m a and his master for the next three months and the somer I got used to doing so the better. Perhaps it was the fatigue of my sleepless hours, perhaps the day I had spent out of doors -in any case I slept without waking; and having, as I thought overcome my nerves and my nonsense, went to bed with ut misgivings, and for a whole week ate, thought and rested like the healthy man I hoped soon to be again. I was in this comfortable mood that I of his master's chair, and he pointed with his put my head on the pillow one night and blew

It must have been some time after midnight when I awoke with a jerk. The flickering firelight was dancing over the room, and something stronger than myself directed my eye to the wall above it. The native was looking towards me as he always did, but my heart almost stopped as I saw his hand: It was pointing straight at the window: I say it to my shame, but without another look in the fatal direction of the mantelpiece, I feli back in ked and drew the clothes over my head. One o'clock struck and then two, and still I lay with only a little corner of the sheet turned back near my mouth that I might breathe. I was damp all over, and when at last I ventured to look out the fire had died down, and I felt easier because there was nothing now to reveal those figures on the wall to my terrified sight. A patch of light shone in the window, but the moon, whose beam I took it to be, would show me nothing through the moreen curtains. I turned over to sleep, and sleep found me at last. All next day I wrestled with my fears. I did not believe I had dreamed and could not convince the logical part of my dream that tered myself as to spend one more night in my room before proclaiming myself a coward and drum until I slept.

My next sensation was of waking with the same jerk, and as I had submarged my head in was over to see how many eggs she could make the sheets as before T peoped out from under me est. them. They say that despair makes cowards brave; but be that as it may, it is suspense that makes many people mad. I struck a light and sat up.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY. This is the age of research and experiment, when all nature, so to speak, is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides during the past century, and among the—by no means least important— discoveries in medicine comes that of THERAPION.

Unquestionably the most reliable Patent Medicine ever introduced, it has been used in the Continental Hospitals by Ricord, Rostan, Johest, Velpeau, Maisonneuve, the well-known Chaesaig-nac, and indeed by all who are regarded as autho-rities in such matters, including the colebrated Lallemand and Rouz, by whom it was some time since uniformly adopted, and that it is worthy the attention of those who require such a remody there is no doubt. From the time of Aristotle there is no doubt. From the time of Aristons downwards, a potent agent is the removal of these diseases has (like the famed philosopher's stone) been the object of search of some hopeful, generous minds; and far beyond the mers power—if such could ever have been discovered—of transmuting the bases metals into gold is surely the discoveryof are medy appoint a storeplants the falling energies of the confirmed ever in the omerate, and in the other so effectually, speedily and safely and in the other so effectually, speedily and safely to expel from the system without the aid, or syst the knowledge of, a second party, the poisons of acquired or inherited disease in all their protein forms as to leave no taint or trace behind. POLITICS IN CORK.

INDIRMARIES BUSY.

But for the extraordinary precautions taken by the constabulary authorities to maintain peace in Cork on Sunday (May 22nd) it is safe to assume that the day would not have passed over without serious bloodshed. The meetings of the Redmondites and O'Brienites brought enormous crowds into the city from all parts of the county, almost every man of whom carried a stick of some description. Five hundred extra men were drafted into the city, and as a further measure of precaution the military were confined to barracks. On Saturday night the Redmonditos had it all their own way, when Mr. Redmond and his colleagues were received by cheering multitude with torollights and bands. Mr. Redmond went to Cork by special train, which was a disappointment to both his friends and the O'Brienites, for while some of the former awaited the ordinary evening train at several stations to welcome him, at others Cheribon Steamtram Co., residing at Tegal the O'Brienites mustered in force, who cheered Java, Mr. van Putt suffered greatly with infor Mr. O'Brien. At Mallow there was a hostile digestion in one of its many forms. "It is with demonstration when the special train was run- gladness I am able to declare that I have been ning through, and eggs were flung at the completely cured by the use of Dr. Williams Carriage.

O'BRIENITE! EARLY ASTIR.

On Sunday morning the O'Brienit's were the first to appear in Cork City, and contingents were to meet the men from North and East Cork. Nearly every man in the procession was armed with a harley or stick. Some curried the legs of tables or chairs, and one man was noticed with a spade handle strapped to his wrist. Thus they marched along, singing, shouting and brandishing their weapons at the crowds of Redmondites who filled the footpaths. Occasionally a 'edmondite lost control of himself and ran amongst the O'Brienites, where he was roughly handled, but the police were always quickly on the scene, and separated the combatants. In the South Mall two rival bands met, and there was a short souffle, during which Mr. D. D. Sheehan, M.P., was roughly handled. In Patrick Street, when passing the Victoria Hotel, where Mr. Redmond and the other members of Parliament were staying, cheers were called for Mr. O'Brien. This was responded to by the rival cries of "Greans for O'Brien." One of the O'Brienites promptly responded by striking a Redmondite on the head with a hurley. He fell to the ground, and was taken off to the hospital. The O'Brienite procession as it marched to the meeting place was of very large dimensions. Mr. O'Brien sat on a side car in the centre of it, and as he came opposite the hotel which was the headquarters of the Redmondites there was a scene of great cheering and booing, and there was every prospect of a general meles. Mr. O'Brien, who sat on the side of the car next the the hotel, took off his hat and frantically waved it in derision at the people who filled every window in the hotel.

STICKS, STONES, AND BOTTLES. Soon after the Redmondites - another big body -marche i with drums; and banners to their meeting place in the Corn Market. When the meeting was concluded there was some fichting in the streets, but nothing very serious occurred. At night, however, things were livelier, and many arrests were made. The police had been forewarned. and on arriving in Clarence Street the band was confronted by a cordon of police drawn across the roadway. Some stone-throwing took place, and this was the signal for a baton charge. There was a sharp conflict, in which batons. sticks, stones, and bottles were freely used. After a time quiet was restored, when two men, named Carroll and Hackett, were found lying in the roadway in an unconscious condition. They were conveyed to the infirmary, where Carroll was operated on for fracture of the skull. Thirty cases, including three constables, were treated at the infirmary.

THE TEMPLE OF PEACE AT THE HAGUE.

The building of the world's " Temple of Peace" goes on apace. The foundations—a difficult undertaking at The Hagne-are now complete, being 25ft. deep. Few beyond American and Dutch appear to interest themselves in the growth of this wonderful building, to which all nations are contributing. The gifts from Norway, Sweden, and Denmark are already in their place, for the base of the Palace is faced with Norwegian granite. Danish granite is built into the side walls and terraces, and the Swedish granite fluds a place in the balustrades of the terrace. America, already to the fore with Mr. Carnegie's gift, is sending some special statuary. France will contribute the Gobelin tapastries for the great Arbitration Chamber. The great iron gateway enclosing the ground is to be the gift of Germany. Japan is decorating the " Hall of the Council of Administration" with embroidered silk hangings of great value. Belgium makes the bronze and iron door for the chief entrance. The South American States are sending gifts of precious woods; and Austria is supplying the bronze and crystal chandeliers. Holland contributes some of the famous F. Bol paintings. The Tsar of Russia is presenting a vase oft. in height, of jasper and gold, and China is sending two beautiful cloisonne vases. One of the most characteristic and unique gifts is that from the Argentine Government. It is a replica of the huge c ucifix erected in the Andes on the confines of Chili and Argentine, "at the conclusion of the treaty of peace between the countries as a symbol that the Prince of Peace would reign henceforth instead of the god of war." "Temple of Peace" will be almost square, with a grand tower some 266ft, high, and not only the most important edifice ever erected in Holland, but the most attractive.
